

A close-up portrait of Libby Trickett, an Australian swimmer, smiling broadly. She is wearing a yellow top and has several Olympic medals hanging from a red ribbon around her neck. The medals include gold, silver, and bronze ones, with some clearly showing the Beijing 2008 Olympic rings and the word 'BEIJING 2008'.

Libby Trickett's blithe admission that a sense of the silly is one of her personal traits is somehow comforting. She is well-grounded, but she is also determined – an irresistible recipe for a likable Aussie hero and role model with an enviable smile. Libby may have retired but we haven't seen the last of her enchanting smile as she embarks on her next career move, presenter for Network Ten and One HD.

Her gilt-edged swimming record includes world records and a Medal of the Order of Australia. Beyond her aquatic life, Libby is involved with the Mater Foundation's Adolescent Drug and Alcohol Awareness Programme and Variety, The Children's Charity as an Ambassador for "The Workplace Challenge".
